

kabinet 07

Domestic Research Society was established by Damijan Kracina, Alenka Pirman and Jani Pirnat in 2004 to record, collect, research and present domestic phenomena. In 2005 they constructed the Cabinet, a modular and mobile display laboratory, based on the historical cabinets of wonders. In October 2007 it hosts a collaborative research project.

ALEXEI MONROE AND DOMESTIC RESEARCH SOCIETY

JELENOMETRIJA

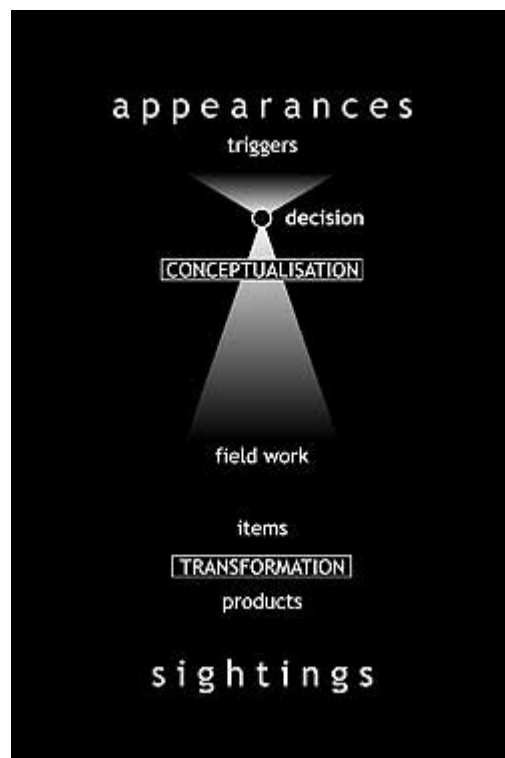

Jelenometry is a collaborative research exhibition produced by the Slovene collective DDR (Domestic Research Society) and cultural theorist Alexei Monroe, author of the book Interrogation Machine (MIT Press 2005). Monroe is currently researching a book project based on the cultural history of the Stag as a symbol. The exhibition title is a neologism based on the Slovene word for the Stag - jelen.

The stag as a symbol is omnipresent in contemporary and urban culture, yet remains elusive and unexplored. One of the objectives of Jelenometry is to test whether the »symbolic Stag« can withstand the intensive repetition and abuse it is subject to in visual culture and other fields.

Jelenometry is the result of a one year joint research programme conducted via the internet, specialist publications and field visits. Meetings and research trips took place in various locations including Ljubljana, Trbovlje, Rogaška Slatina, Kočevje, Vitanje and Berlin.

The project represents a hunt for the symbolic Stag, which has generated its own specialist vocabulary and an in-depth analysis conducted on the borders of natural science, humanities and art.

The exhibition opened on October 4th, 2007. You can visit the Cabinet during the opening times of the exhibitions in the Škuc Gallery: Tuesday - Sunday from 12am-8pm, closed on Mondays. Welcome! You can also visit us by appointment. Please, call 051 345 821 or 041 922 782, or write to info@ddr.si.
